

LEAVING ON A JET PLANE

From Swiss towns to the quaint house boats of Kashmir, here's where some of India's bosses love to vacation

etpanache@timesgroup.com

Ananth Narayanan, CEO, Myntra
"In India, I love vacationing in Kodaikanal. I grew up going there every summer. Internationally, there is a small village called Obergurgl in Austria. I go skiing there."

Sebi Joseph, president, Otis India
"The beauty of El Nido in the Philippines has left me the most amazed. The white beaches and cliffs surrounded by magnificent. It is truly picture perfect."

PICS: THINKSTOCK PHOTOS/GETTY IMAGES, N NARSIMHAMURTHY

Shubh Bansal, co-founder, Truebil
"Arambol in North Goa as it is a surfer's paradise and is one of the most pristine and unexplored beaches of Goa. It can be visited in any season, be it summer, winter or monsoon."

Narinder Singh Dhir, CMD, Numero Uno
"Any part of South East Asia. I absolutely love their culture and food. Thailand particularly is a must visit. It's a refined nation with a lot of warmth."

Robin Raina, chairman, Ebix Inc
"The sights of the Dartmoor area in Cornwall, England or the mountain waterfalls in Lauterbrunnen, Switzerland or the pristine Perth beaches in Australia are the destinations that I love to visit time and again. In India, my favourite holiday remains staying at a high quality house boat in Nagin Lake at Kashmir—It's like nothing I have experienced anywhere in the world."